

SURVIVOR OF AKRON BOOKED TO ADDRESS DOYLESTOWN CLUBS

Kiwanis, Rotary and Optimist
Clubs to Hold Joint Session

ON TUESDAY NIGHT
Recent Benefit Performance
Netted a Profit of $349.53

DOYLESTOWN, May 19.—First-hand information about conditions in Germany told by a professor from Dresden, and the announcement that next Tuesday night, May 23, Richard Deal, one of the three survivors of the giant airship Akron tragedy, will be a guest of the club, were the highlights of the weekly dinner meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Doylestown at the Fountain House.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer, president of the club, extended his thanks to all members of the Kiwanis show cast of this year and agreed to see to it that every member of the cast received a personal letter of thanks. Judge Boyer pointed out a large group of individuals whose efforts put the show across again this season.

Then came the announcement of the "good word" by Show Chairman J. Allen Gardy, who stated that the net profits from this year's efforts total $349.53, and a check for that amount was authorized sent to George S. Hotchkiss, president of the Doylestown Welfare Council. All but $75 of the amount will be donated for the purchase of milk by the Council for undernourished children in this community, the other $75—a donation from the Philadelphia Electric Company—to be used for unemployment relief in Doylestown.

Show Chairman "Russ" Thomas extended his thanks to members of the club who were active in putting the show across. He said that he never received better co-operation from any cast. Owing to the fact that the entire profit of the show will be donated to welfare this year, it was announced that no dinner or party will be held for the cast. Mr. Thomas announced that the same producing company had been tentatively secured for the 1934 show.

Judge Boyer announced that an effort will be made to make next week's meeting a joint meeting of Kiwanis, Rotary and Optimist clubs. The Optimist Club has agreed to change their meeting night to Tuesday, May 23, and meet with Kiwanis; and Rotary will decide tonight at their inter-club meeting at Valley Forge, what action they will take on the meeting that will be addressed by Head Boatswain Richard Deal, of the ill-fated Akron.

The guest speaker, Dr. Helmut Gurliit, professor of German at Lafayette College, Easton, was introduced by Irvin Vanartsdalen, son of Past President Isaac J. Vanartsdalen, the former a student at Lafayette.

Dr. Gurliit, who has been in America but a short time, is a native of Dresden. He spoke particularly of "official Germany" and "unofficial Germany" and made it clear that in spite of the many different conditions existing in Germany today, much can be learned by the rest of the world from "unofficial Germany."

Dr. Gurliit spoke particularly of the failure of democracy in Germany, and told how the country faced communism and a dangerous civil war.

"When I left Germany last fall everybody knew we were going to have a change," he said. "Why is democracy failing? Blood and tradition no longer gives you the right to be a leader in the social body of today. That is not only true in Germany but in any other country in the world. In Germany we had much too much control over the cultural and spiritual life. There should be more freedom of thought in the present times especially as to the cultural and spiritual life."

"Trade and industry are too much controlled by government regulations and red tape, all of which points toward breaking down a democracy in the true sense of the word. In America for instance there is a great danger, I believe, that threatens industrial life if the state takes control too much. There should be a policy of individual initiative evidenced in industrial life everywhere. There is not enough spirit of civil service in industrial life."

Dr. Gurliit said that the development more of the idea of fraternity and brotherhood among nations, and bringing out of the personality of the nations, is the only guarantee for satisfactory results in future international co-operation.

Germany, Dr. Gurliit, explained, chose Hitlerism instead of communism, and out of it will come much good.

Every participant is working eagerly and enthusiastically. It is a pleasure to note that their enthusiasm has communicated itself to other members of St. Ann's parish, not directly connected with the production, who, in turn, have deemed it opportune to form a permanent boosters committee to encourage and wholeheartedly support any worthwhile cause or enterprise that would benefit St. Ann's Church or the Italian community.

MRS. LUCRETIA BLANKENBURG TELLS CLUB WOMEN ALL PEOPLE SHOULD HEED MESSAGES FOR WORLD PEACE; SOROSIS RECIPRO CITY LUNCHEON SPEAKER

Langhorne Club Has Bi-Annual Affair, Bucks Co. Country Club

PRESENT NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. Charles S. Musser Also Speaks; Music by Langhorne Women

(By Staff Correspondent)

LANGHORNE, May 19.—Mrs. Lucretia Blankenburg, beloved and admired not only by residents of her home-city, Philadelphia, but by all with whom she comes in contact, was the honor guest at the bi-annual reciprocity luncheon of Langhorne Sorosis, yesterday. The affair, the scene of which was in the Bucks County Country Club, attracted 125 women, the gathering comprising members of the local women's club, presidents of other women's clubs in Bucks and Philadelphia counties and additional guests.

The appealing menu, at 12.30, was served in the dining-hall with small tables arranged amidst a profusion of Spring flowers. Above each fire-place wistaria hung in graceful strands from large baskets.

Upon adjournment to the club casino, Mrs. J. Nelson Allison, retiring president of Sorosis, welcomed the guests, and all joined in the state song with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Edgar Frutchey, Jr.

There were three guest speakers for the afternoon, Mrs. Blankenburg, who is honorary vice-president of the general federation of women's clubs; Mrs. Charles S. Musser, state chairman of county federations and club extension; and Mrs. H. S. Prentiss Nichols, Philadelphia.

Taking a topic most pertinent to the times, Mrs. Blankenburg referred to the "great message of Hitler," with particular reference to the desire on the German's part for world peace. Letters from two of her friends in Germany were read by Mrs. Blankenburg, who is most alert in spite of her advanced age. One of the epistles told of Hitler's hard life, and stated he had "studied for himself and his hard-earned money." It was brought to light that the German leader does not smoke, drink alcohol or eat meat; that he is an artist and architect. "Our nation is so full of troubles. All need to listen when these leaders tell of the need of peace." The Philadelphia woman stated she was most pleased to return to her parents' native country for a visit.

Remarks were made by Mrs. Nichols who told that "one of the most precious things we have are our memories. And one of the most potent things in life is personal influence, and there is no way of telling how far the influence of this group of women has gone." The Sorosis members were commended heartily for their advancement along many lines. "May you go on from glory to glory, and be a real joy to this neighborhood."

The club woman's contribution to the art of living was spoken of by Mrs. Musser. "All about us we see the inadequacy of life to meet life. These are the most interesting times this old world has ever seen; and I believe we are facing the greatest trials and the greatest difficulties, but facing them with the greatest idealism and in that lies the greatest hope." "Abundant success and that without which life is most futile—the joy of living" was the wish of Mrs. Musser for the hostess club.

One of the features of the program was the introduction of the new president of Sorosis, Mrs. Lynn J. Harrington, who was presented with the gavel and the president's pin by the retiring president, Mrs. Allison. Other officers were likewise introduced to the gathering, these being: first vice-president, Mrs. William H. Stark; second vice-president, Mrs. J. Thompson Schell; recording secretary, Mrs. Herbert A. Continued on Page Four

Mae West at Grand Tonight In "She Done Him Wrong"

Wae West's first starring picture, "She Done Him Wrong," will be shown at the Grand Theatre tonight. The picture was written by Miss West.

"She Done Him Wrong" is a lusty, roaring melodrama of the Bowery—a hearty tale of the notorious old avenue where men are men and women are "on the make." Its saloons and its politicians, its honky-tonks and its "dames," furnish a background for the activities of the principal characters.

Miss West is cast as "Lady Lou," a famous beer-hall entertainer with a deadly edge on unwary males. Her suitors flock around her, practically in swarms, but she deals with them in a matter-of-fact fashion. Those who can provide her with the diamonds which are her weakness may enjoy her favors. The others?—too bad.

Barge Parties Proving Popular On Delaware Canal

Judging from the early reservations barge parties will be more popular on the Delaware Canal this year than last. Thus far, 33 trips are scheduled for May and June as against 26 last year according to information received from the Norristown office of the Department of Forests and Waters.

The section of the canal, 40 miles in length, from Yardley to Raubsville was turned over to the commonwealth two years ago for state park purposes. It is being maintained precisely in its quaint state and is used largely for recreational purposes according to Department officials. Nearly one hundred parties and groups were taken by canal boats from New Hope to Lumberville and return during the 1932 season.

The department has made two barges, each of which is 50 feet in length, available for the use of parties and as a rule both are scheduled well ahead especially during the period just preceding full moon when the trip happens to be the most fascinating. Each boat is drawn by two mules hitched tandem fashion. They have a short string of bells attached to the harness and the other equipment and accessories of the team and boat are those of by-gone days even to the "night-hawker" an old type of light. Parties made up of people usually from the vicinity of Philadelphia and Trenton are said to leave from New Hope and are out as a rule from six to ten hours taking picnic lunches or suppers with them. A quiet woody spot usually is selected as a stopping place. Many persons consider passing through the Lumberville locks the highlight of the trip although perhaps no other section of Penn's Woods contains forty miles of such magnificent scenery as that part of the Delaware Valley adjacent to the canal.

District Forester E. F. Brouse also pointed out the fact that the canal is used also extensively for bathing, canoeing and fishing.

Recently DiPendo was placed under probation with Chief Jones as the probation officer. Chief Jones brought the lad in again for violation of his parole so Justice James Guy, returned the lad to the juvenile court.

PLUMS FOR THE LADIES

Patronage has hardly begun to flow from Washington and yet the lady politicians have received more recognition from the Roosevelt administration in three months than they received from all past administrations combined. It is no petticoat government Mr. Roosevelt has set up in Washington but it is no longer a "no woman's land."

After such an unusual beginning as making Miss Frances Perkins secretary of labor, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen minister to Denmark, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross director of the mint, and Mrs. Lucille F. McMullin civil service commissioner, the administration announced through its high priest of patronage, Postmaster General Farley, this was only a start, that other important posts were awaiting qualified women.

Rather tardily recognition is being won by the lady politicians for their part in national politics. Former national administrations refused to admit that they were a factor in anything higher than state politics and therefore were not entitled to choice plums.

President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley are practical and seasoned politicians, so in the distribution of patronage will be guided by another purpose than the paying of old political debts. Each job will go where it will do the most good in clinching congressional support for the administration and in holding votes in 1936, in view of which it would seem that the administration is counting on the lady politicians and women voters to play a bigger part in the next presidential election.

CURBING PROMOTERS

Congress has just done something it should have done years ago—passed a blue sky law for the protection of domestic and foreign securities. Had such an act been on the statute books a decade ago a large part of the $19,000,000,000 invested by the American people in foreign bonds would still be working at home.

Under two administrations Washington indifferently watched billions pouring out of the country and into the hands of foreign governments and corporations it must have known could not meet the interest payments. It was almost criminal negligence.

The Federal securities law is drastic and probably will interfere with the free flow of capital as well as with legitimate enterprise, but the situation demands something drastic. Industry, finance and even the investing public will occasionally resent this interference but none can suffer through it the tortures of those who invested their life savings in now worthless foreign securities.

There are two important provisions in the bill. Corporations offering their securities for interstate sale must register with the Federal Trade Commission and publish the truth about themselves and their securities. Their directors will be held responsible for any misrepresentations or other violations, so directors may be expected to do more directing in the future.

For the protection of investors in foreign securities the Federal Trade Commission will not only investigate all offerings but will, through a special corporation, look after the interests of holders of defaulted paper.

CHAPTER I

"I don't want any foolishness," Aunt Evvie said to Joan when Joan as a child begged for a pet or a playmate. And, "I don't want any foolishness," she still said, when seventeen-year old Joan asked for silk stockings, or permission to stay and play tennis after school.

That settled it so far as Aunt Evvie was concerned. But "foolishness" is not so easily settled when you are seventeen, and it's spring. It was April. The lilacs on the old Van Fleet place had burst into bloom over night. Yesterday they were tight, dark buds, and now the feathery blossoms sprayed over the summer house and dripped, a glorious purple tide, onto the sun-blasted bench beside it.

Joan grinned mischievously and kissed the sweet green wood of the lilac tree. Joan was always loving things—the little new green shoots in the old yew hedge, the swelling buds on the rose bushes, the poor, rusty iron deer, who had stood for so many years firmly planted in the middle of the garden.

When you aren't allowed to have real friends you have to make believe ones. At least Joan did. Major, the deer, was the best beloved of them all. Many were the warm kisses she had pressed on his cold iron nose, many the tearful secrets she had poured into his deaf and rusty ear. Silly name and silly car, but she was only three, and thought he was a dog when she named him that. Perhaps, she thought, the doggieish name would give him a little more life, inspire him to pick up his iron heels and run "woof-woofing" around the yard like the Sedgewicks' dog next door. Joan was always imagining things.

"Silly thing!" Mrs. Heeley, peeling potatoes at the kitchen window, watched her disgustedly. "She's been up to something!" The brosy parings slid in thin spirals from her red, bony hands, onto the newspaper-covered drain board. "Wait till Miss Evvie gets after her... she'll catch it!"

There was an odd exulting gleam in her sunken old eyes, something vicious in the way she handled the sharp little paring knife. "Old Crazy Heeley," the Sausalito children called her. Thirty-seven years she had worked for the Van Fleets. "Workin' my fingers to the bone, takin' Miss Evvie's lip, and no decent wages... they'll see when I'm gone..." She was always threatening to quit. But she never did. She hated change.

She hated Joan, too. Joan—who was young when she and the "Van Fleet" girls were old. Joan—with the too red, too laughing mouth. Joan—with the fly-away golden hair, tomboy Joan, always rushing and running and tumbling over things, never stopping to grow up into a proper young lady.

"Lookit her now. Playin' with them flowers like they was human. I've a good mind to call her in an'—"

The big front door, swollen after the long rains, creaked loudly on its heavy hinges. A voice on the front porch, authoritative, manly. No need for Heeley to call Joan. Miss Evvie would see to everything.

voice was heavy, bass, almost like a man's. Joan's head went up. She had fighting blood. "Yes, I did!"

"Liar!" Evvie spat the word out. "Liar! A girl that will lie, that will sneak, and—"

"I didn't lie! I said I spent the afternoon with Hilda and Anne, and I did—"

"At a dance hall, a common, public place!"

"A dancing class, Aunt Evvie! Everybody at school goes—all the nice girls, Hilda and Anne, and Dorothy Nailer. You can't say the Sedgewicks and the Nailors aren't nice..."

"Very nice, I'm sure," Evvie folded her arms on her militant chest, and dropped her voice to a sugary rumble. "Quite as nice as the riff-raff that attends Maybe nierz. But in the future you will have nothing more to do with these nice girls! I forbid you to speak to them, except as may be necessary in school. Is that quite clear? Let us not misunderstand each other again—"

"But Aunt Evvie—they are my friends—almost the only ones!"

Poor Joan's voice was shaking a little in spite of herself. She couldn't lose Hilda and Anne—she must make Aunt Evvie see. "Oh, please listen. You don't understand! I'll promise never to dance again if you'll only just let me—"

"Dinner is served!" Mrs. Heeley put her head in the doorway. Her thin face was flushed with excitement. "Dinner is served, ladies!"

Aunt Babe got up and led the way automatically cross the hall into the dining room. The others followed.

Evvie tasted her soup. "It's cold. Heeley—take it out!" Heeley glowered. Babe hastily tasted hers. "Why, sister, it isn't cold—"

"I said take it out!" Heeley flounced out, muttering. They heard her banging around in the kitchen, talking to herself. Evvie was hardly conscious of it. She began on Joan again.

"This—this dancing teacher came here. She had the effrontery to call here, while you were dawdling on your way home. Wanted money so that you could learn dancing. Money—"

Joan's face was flaming. "I never asked for any! I just went with the girls to visit, and she let me dance this afternoon—free—"

"Free! Humph! Throw a sprat to catch a mackerel. Well, she caught no mackerel—you'll do no dancing."

"I never asked—"

"No, you wormed your way in free. Free! A Van Fleet—"

"I'm not a Van Fleet. I'm a Hastings—"

Evvie's lip curled. "It's nothing to be proud of. The less you say about that father of yours to me—"

"Sister! Please—" Aunt Babe reached a skinny, trembling hand across the table. "You forget yourself—"

And the black-haired old woman, and the golden-haired girl didn't even see her. There was no stopping them now. The fight was on.

"Proud! I'm not proud of anything. What have I got to be proud of?"

off? Cotton stockings—when every other girl in school has silk! Patched, crazy old clothes. I'm the laughing stock of the whole school! But I could stand that if you'd let me be like the rest—play basket ball, and go on hikes and all. You never let me have a single bit of fun my whole life. And when any—"

Joan went right on, heedless of them. "I never had any fun! I'm the only girl in the school now that can't dance. I don't even know a boy. Every girl I know goes to dancing class on Wednesdays. It doesn't cost much. I guess all my mother's share of grandfather's money isn't gone. She'd have let me go—she'd know. How am I ever to meet any boys, when I can't—"

Aunt Evvie's glass snapped in her hands. The water dripped off the fine damask cloth onto the faded carpet in a forlorn, slow trickle. She pushed her chair back—stood up, pointing a thick, trembling finger at Joan.

"Boys! It's come to that already! Boys! You poor, misguided girl! And money—don't talk to me about your mother's share! If I hadn't been the businessman of this family, investing and saving like I have—"

"But you did lose on that oil stock!" Babe quavered.

"That word—oil—was enough to madden Evvie. She had never admitted even to herself, how much she had lost on that. She had clung to recover the losses on the cactus farm lands and the Florida real estate.

The last vestige of her self-control vanished. "Do—show your ignorance!" she snarled at Babe. "We'd all be in the poorhouse now if it wasn't for me. Now keep out of this. I'm going to settle Joan Hastings, right now. I'm talking about boys—boys! She's boy-steek like her mother. Do you hear me, you silly girl? It's boys I'm trying to save you from. We lived down one disgrace in this family—"

"Evvie!" Babe was pleading. Her hands were clasped. "After all these years—nobody knows. You wouldn't tell!"

"Wouldn't I?" It's been told at every tea party we did go to for seventeen years, and don't you ever think it hasn't. Skeleton in the closet! Babe! Skeleton on the clothes lines—that's what ours has been!"

Again the thick finger pointed at the shrinking Joan. "I don't want that all over again—do you hear me? I won't have it!"

"You won't have what?"

"Evvie, for my sake—please!" Babe's frizzed gray head was down on the table now. Little sighs and moans. Stilled sobs. Her thin, veined hand reached for her handkerchief.

And Joan, her cheeks flaming, her tawny hair pushed back, panting. "Tell me—you've got to tell me now—you've got to—"

They punished cars and gasolines to bring you better driving

YOU would have seen a strange sight, had you been in a certain part of the Allegheny Mountains last summer. A score of noted engineers... representing leading automobile and refining companies, a scientific society, a university... were there conducting some of the most grueling tests of cars and gasolines ever devised.

ATLANTIC engineers participated. Since August, they have been carrying on the research themselves, utilizing the important discoveries which were made. And they have succeeded in developing a NEW ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH... which they sincerely believe to be better on every point than any product ever offered at or near its price!

So amazingly better it's winning the praise of thousands

TRY IT AND SEE!

INTRODUCED just two weeks ago, the NEW ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is sweeping ahead into sensational popularity. Its success is being cited as one of today's most encouraging business signs.

Two small words are contributing largely to that success. Those words are: "Try it!"

Women are telling each other, "Try it!" Men are hailing their friends, "Try it!" Garage mechanics, truck drivers, bankers, professional men... all are passing the message, "Try it!"

A fuel that tells itself upon a single trial must be good. The NEW ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is good. In fact, we sincerely believe it's better on every point than any fuel ever offered at or near its price. Try it and see!

New ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH

POWERFULLY BETTER.

Greatest Circus On Golden Jubilee Tour

The Greatest Show on Earth, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus—this season celebrating the Golden Jubilee of the Ringling Brothers, who fifty years ago began their triumphal march to world circus supremacy—is definitely scheduled to exhibit in Philadelphia, week of May 22nd.

Outstanding among the almost countless new features of the Golden Jubilee gala performances is the most magnificent opening spectacle ever produced by this colossus among amusement enterprises. It is an authentic and dazzling reproduction of The Durbar, the world famous coronation ceremonial at Delhi, India. The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey pageantry, opulent and staggering in its immensity, employs over 2,000 people and animals, including fifty elephants in gem-studded coronation robes and lustrous headdresses, East Indian Marimbo and British Imperial foot guard bands, scores of festival tongas, bearing rajahs and ranees, will be in the van of the pageant. A golden temple, designed by Gandhi Moodi of Delhi, ornate ceremonial cars and gorgeous royal howdahs add immeasurably to the splendor of The Durbar.

Vying with the resplendent impressiveness of The Durbar is the most unusual and weird impertation that even The Greatest Show on Earth ever brought out of the Orient—the Royal Padaung giraffe-neck women from Burma. These strange oriental women, with their incredibly long necks encircled with brass and copper rings, carrying sixty pounds of copper ornaments on their arms and legs, are unbelievable aloof from all mankind.

They are like no other racial group in all the teeming East. The rings, soldered upon their necks, are constantly superimposed from infancy until maturity, until these stoic-eyed Oriental beauties resemble nothing so much as the giraffe. Never was so sensational a feature exhibited in the main performance of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus.

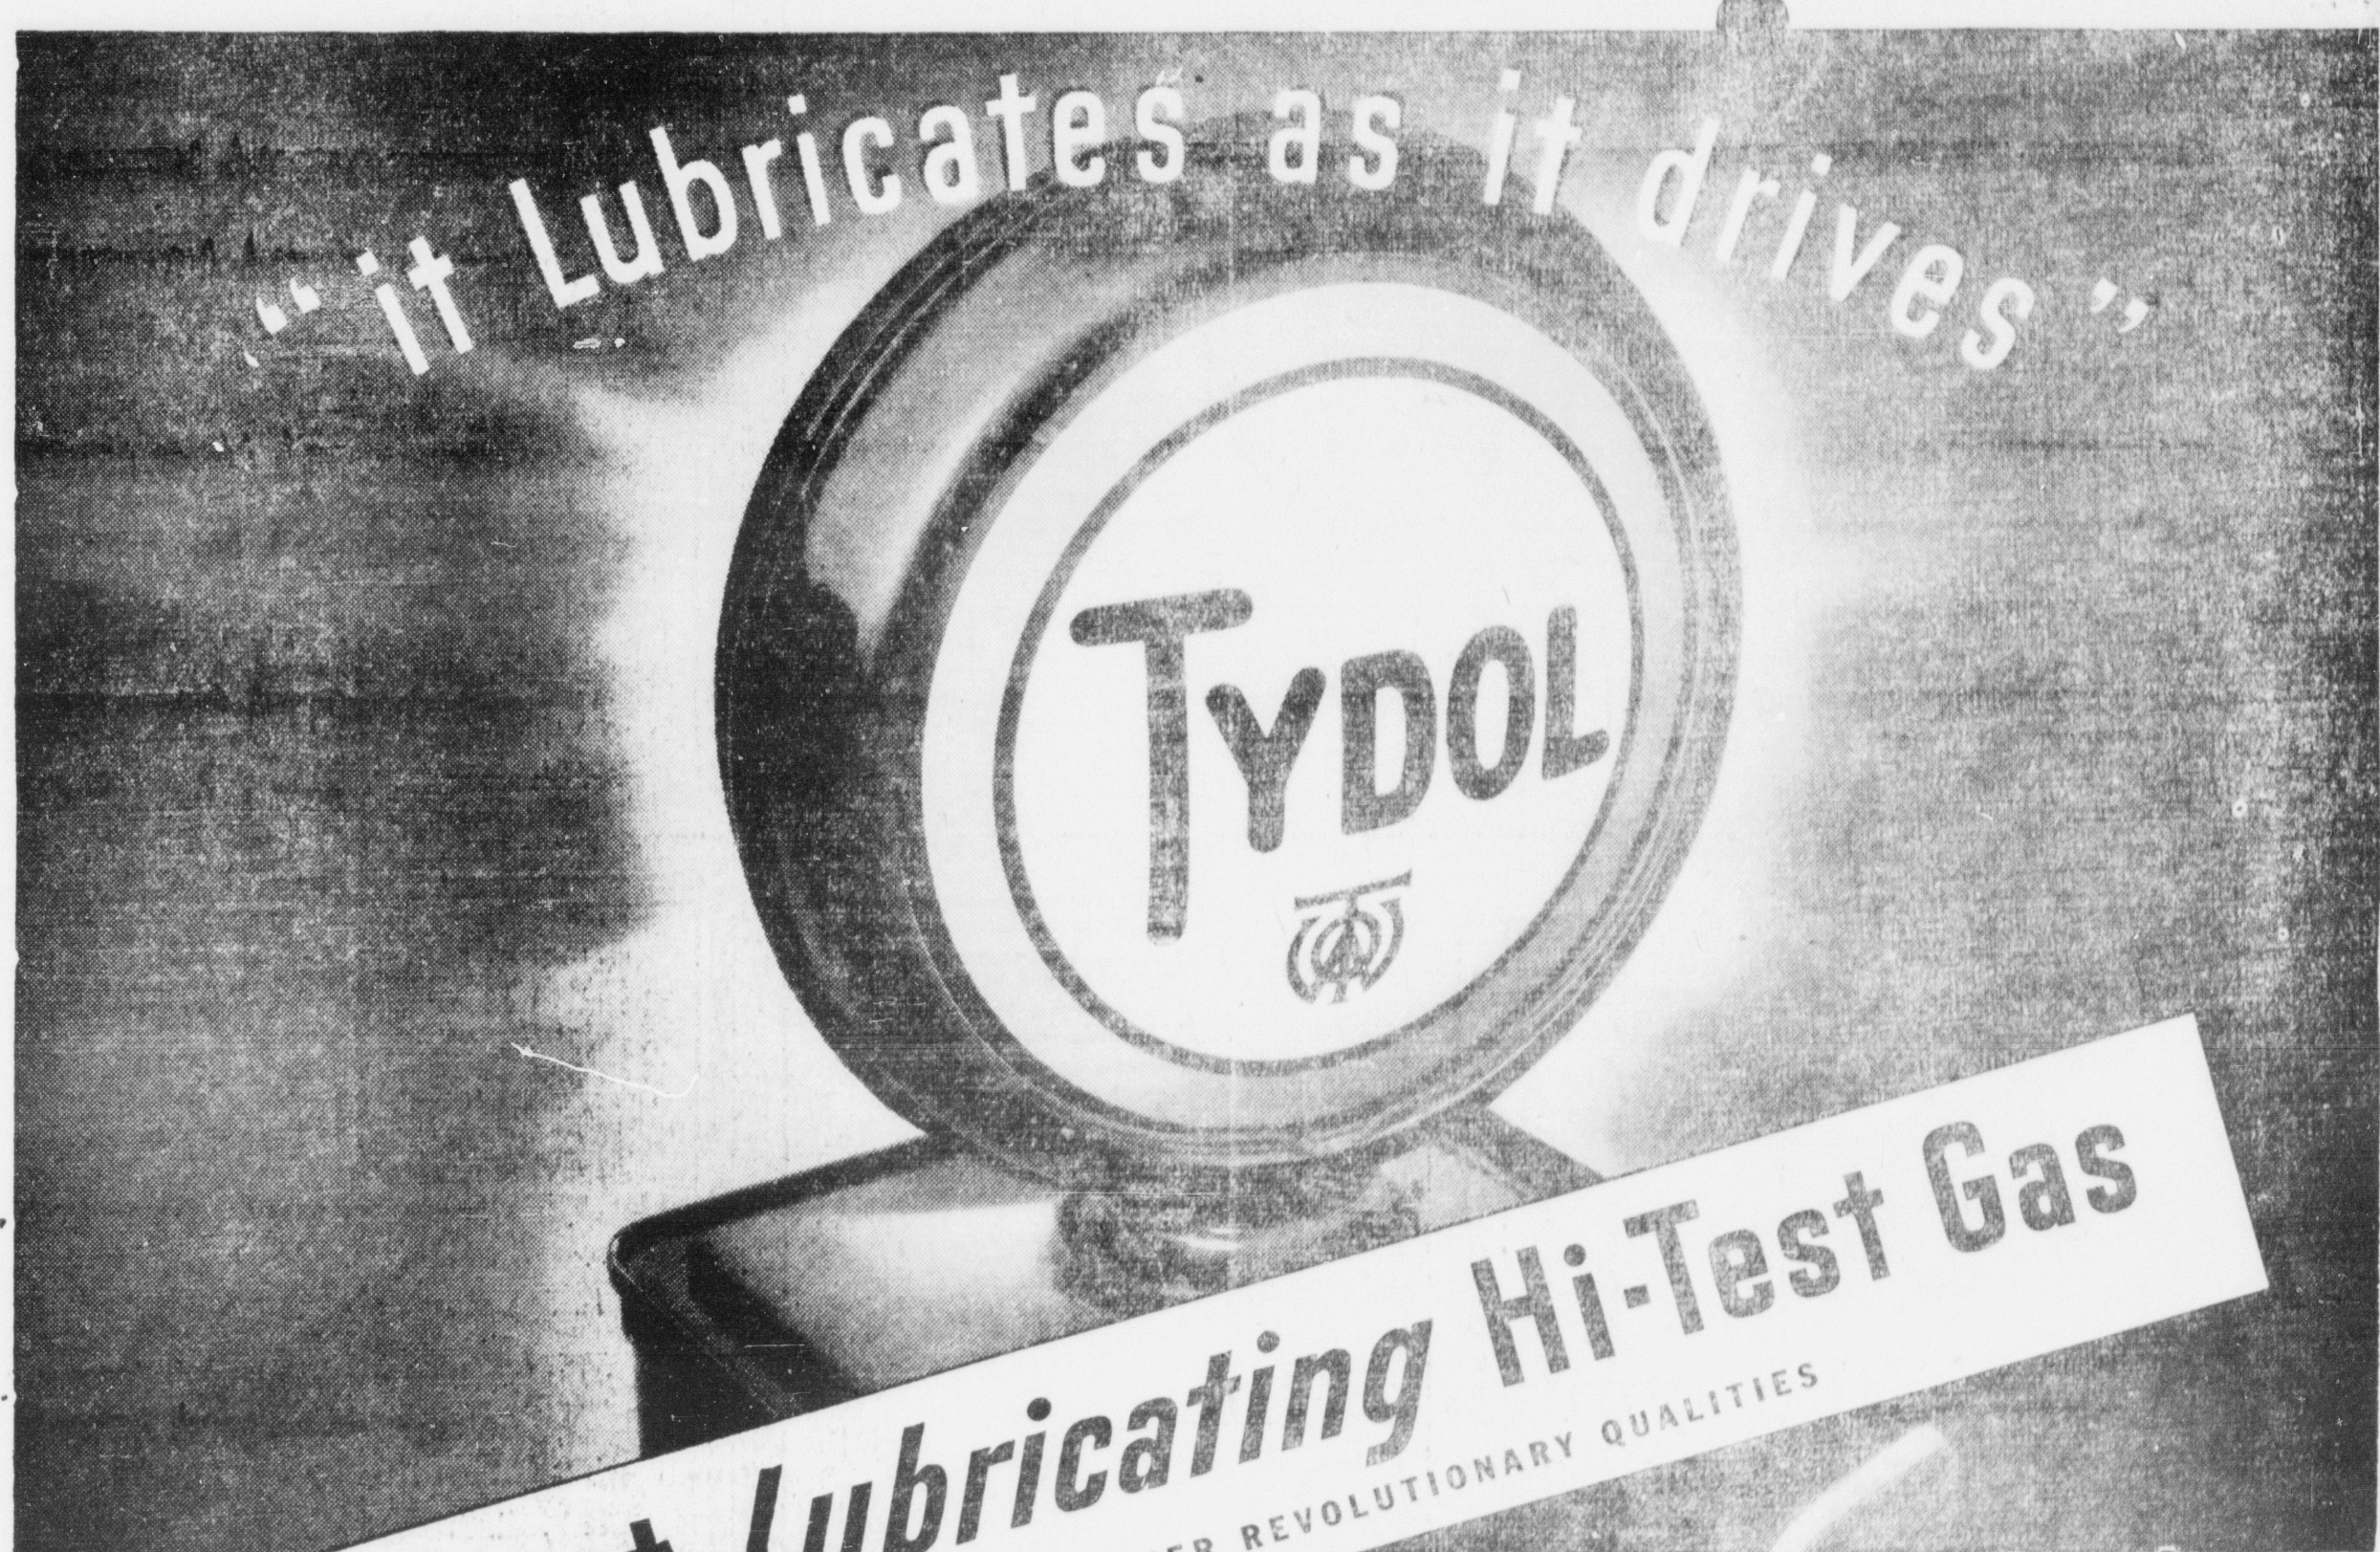

The Golden Jubilee five-ring, four-stage program features displays in units of fifty, with the stars of all lands competing in the air, rings and hippodrome track and on the stages.

There are more than 800 performers. The circus bears on its four long trains of 100 double-length steel rail-road cars over 1600 people, 10 elephants, 1009 menagerie animals and 100 horses.

The great Con Colleano, tumbling, forward-somersaulting tight wire star, has been recalled from European triumphs to join the Big Show constellation of stars, as has the famous Alfredo Codomo, world's only triple mid-air somersault to a sensational catch. Yabanque, French leap-of-death trapezist, is a new star. Marcelus' Parisian Flying Ballet, the Uyeno, Yacopi, Danwill, Rubio, Ben Hamid, somersaulting acrobatic troupes; the Wallenda and Gretoua high wire thrillers; the Flying Codomas, Concellos and Harolds; the riding Kleckhacks, Walters and Davenports; Dorothy Herbert, world's most sensational horsewoman; Maximo and Mijaro, slack wire stars; Zaccini, human projectile; Lucita Leers, aerial star, and Al Powell, flying bowknot—these are a few of the headliners among the better known acts. There are 100 of the world's most famous clowns in the Golden Jubilee gala performances.

St. Ann's at Edgely

The Jefferson A. C. sprung a big surprise in the Bristol Twilight League game last night on St. Ann's field, defeating the fast-going Independent club, 5-4, in a very close game.

The "Indies" staged a last ditch rally which netted them two runs and placed the tying run on base but D. Stallone bled to end the fray. Stallone was Breslin's eleventh strike-out victim of the game. He issued four passes and with fine support easily suppressed the Independent team.

Lasprella opened the fifth inning by drawing a pass. Tullio also waited and got four bad ones. Antonelli raised a fly to Wright. Tosti bunted a fly to Dreslin and with an easy double-play in sight, "Camel" threw the ball over Britton's head, advancing the runners. J. Stallone singled to center, scoring Lasprella and Tullio. Stallone stole second and third while D. Stallone struck out.

"Bud" Wright's triple in the fifth inning proved to be the deciding blow of the game. He scored on Dugan's fly to left.

HULMEVILLE LOSES TO LANGHORNE NINE

LOWER BUCKS COUNTY LEAGUE

Results of Last Night
LANGHORNE, 6; HULMEVILLE, 5
HIBERNIANS, 2; ODD FELLOWS, 1
PARKLAND, 2; BRISTOL A. A., 1

One run victories featured the Lower Bucks County League game played last night.

On Sullivan's field, Parkland A. A. scored a 2-1 win over the Bristol A. A. team and the old-fashioned squeaky play predominated. With McDaniels on third place in the fifth inning, Hemp laid low a bunt to score the baserunner and then beat out the throw for a single.

The fray was a pitcher's duel between "Milt" Jones, of Bristol, and "Will" Holland of Parkland. Holland gave the Bristol team two hits and fanned nine batters. Jones allowed Parkland three hits and fanned four batters.

Bristol scored its run in the second inning when Ihrig was hit with a pitched ball. He stole second, went to third on a sacrifice by Jones and scored on Cooper's roller to second base.

The Odd Fellows and Hibernians exhibited plenty of thrills in their fray at Emille with the "Hibs" finishing on top with another 2-1 score.

Dougherty's three base hit with Danny Hines on base in the fifth inning proved to be the deciding blow for the winners, as Lawler was in fine shape and blanked the "Oddies" after a tally had crossed in the first inning. The Hibernians had deadlocked the score in the third inning when Mellor singled, was sacrificed to second and scored on Hines' safe blow to left.

"Cherry" Bates' double with D. Still on first base in the first inning was the only run scored off Lawler.

Still reached first on Dougherty's miscue.
The Odd Fellows meet Langhorne at Langhorne on Monday night.

Langhorne Colored Giants remained in first place in the Hulmeville County League, nosing out Bristol by the count of 6-5. The game was played at Langhorne.

Kelvinator Had Biggest Factory Shipments in April

April was the biggest month for the Kelvinator Corporation shipments that the Kelvinator Corporation has experienced in its 19 years of existence, according to word received from the factory in Detroit by Spencer & Sons, Bristol Kelvinator representatives.

A total of 30,116 units were shipped from the factory during the month, Edgar Spencer said. This figure represents an increase of 47 per cent of the April average for the past five years and eclipses the previous record of 25,427 units shipped in April, 1932.

"This business is more than a temporary spurt," the local dealer pointed out. "The factory now has on hand unfilled orders representing 217 per cent of those a year ago and ended April with unfilled orders 323 per cent of those on file at the beginning of the month."

Information received by Mr. Spencer revealed that the factory May production schedule has been set at 40 per cent above the shipments of May 1932 which was the biggest May in the company's history.

"From all parts of the country there are reports of an unusually keen interest in Kelvinator products. The 1933 Kelvinator household line already has been accepted as the most advanced and complete the company ever has offered while other refrigeration products such as water coolers, beer cooling equipment, air conditioning units and similar equipment are being sold to a greater extent than ever before," the local dealer said.

Queen Helen in Form

Apparently her absence from the courts has not impaired the skill and verve of Helen Wills Moody, who is here shown as she engaged in a dashing workout at Forest Hills, N. Y., in preparation for her invasion of the European courts. After defending her title at Wimbledon, London, Queen Helen will return to the U. S. to participate in the national singles, the sceptre of which is held by Helen Jacobs, a sister Californian.

HOLLYWOOD. —Belated recognition, concludes Ginger Rogers, is better than none.

Continuing the good luck that the red-head has enjoyed since "42nd Street," R-K-O yesterday gave Ginger the feminine lead in "Rafter Romance," a story so well thought of that Merian C. Cooper once had it in mind for Dorothy Jordan and Joel McCrea.

The assignment added significance because it will allow Ginger to try her hand at a dramatic role. It was the success of a dramatic test that finally moved R-K-O to offer the actress a contract.

Ginger came through in "The Purity Girl," a satire on the radio world, and now the studio is eager to get her into another picture. Kenneth MacGowan, who's to be associate producer on "Rafter Romance," will get the cameras turning as soon as he can find a leading man.

And, for a romance note, Lew Ayres still is high man with Ginger.

They were swapping stories out at Fox about critical slams. Herbert Mundin dug a faded clipping out of his wallet. The author, an English reviewer, went on to praise or blame the performers in a play. He saved Mundin for the last. He wrote: "And I see by the program that Herbert Mundin is a comedian."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE.
For the first time in many a picture, Connie Lennett is consenting to work over time. Usually La Bennett puts in aer 8 hours and makes her departure. Now it's sometimes as long as 12. They say it's the song of the islands, calling her.

The reason Janet Gaynor is so thrilled over furnishing her new home in Beverly is that she will now have her own things for the first time. Though one of the big stars, Janet always has rented furnished places. For the asking, Gary Cooper also will sing the praises of the chickens, walnut trees and quiet on his Van Nuys ranch. And Joan Crawford has been personally retouching her kitchen furniture. Must be the spring air.

They have a sick list at Fox. Elissa Landi has a touch of flu and Victor Jory combines a bad cold with a painful case of sunburn. The other morning he played 9 sets of tennis, wearing only a silk undershirt over his shoulders. The sun went through.

Theda Thayer, stepdaughter of Tiffany Thayer, looks very much like Lydia Bertelli. A whole Los Angeles audience knows why Gene Raymond will never make another personal appearance with a monkev. Latest Hollywood camera fiend is Jean Harlow. She snapped pictures all over the set and studio yesterday. It will be Palm Springs for Bing Crosby from now on. One of the hotels in the desert resort will defy the heat and remain open all summer.

Randy Scott has eyes only for Vivian Gaye these days, and evenings. She is Sara Maritz's pretty manager. Ruth Biery and Eleanor Packer are flying to New York Saturday to contact the magazines. They'll be partners in writing about the movies. . . .

Scenarist Grover Jones is the despair of the members of the Pacific Writers' Yacht Club. He seems to know nautical terms. The tops! is "that sail that looks like a duck's back." Says Grover:

"I haven't found a thing on a yacht that I couldn't successfully refer to as a hootenanny."
